

My telephone is a private system that I pay for my private use. It is not in any way for the use of mass media marketing tool. Under current Indiana law I have received no unsolicited calls, and I demand to keep it that way; however, if your proposed federal "no-call list" law is passed, it will weaken and dilute current state laws which are working just fine. I believe wholeheartedly that I will begin to receive unsolicited and unwanted calls if your proposed measure is passed.

Prior to the Indiana's no-call list we were receiving an average of 5-6 unsolicited and unwanted calls per day during hours which were of inconvenience and extremely annoying. These calls were made by companies who refused to recognize different time zones, the word "no", and "please remove me from your calling list". At times the telephone solicitor has been extremely rude and disrespectful using language that under FCC standards is not allowed. These calls at the most were the cause of stress-related anxiety that is depremental to my health and well-being. Since we have been listed with the Indiana's no-call list my stress level has decreased, and we have been able to enjoy the use of my telephone in privacy.

Please, do not delute current state laws regulated unsolicited calls.
